In 2003, a consortium of interested people organised the first 'National Exhibition of Australian Plants as Bonsai'. The group consisted of bonsai enthusiasts from Canberra, the Australian Plants as Bonsai Study Group and the Australian National Botanic Gardens (ANBG). Its success has seen the event held regularly since then and it has become part of the Australian bonsai calendar. It invites exhibitors from across Australia and is held in the grounds of the ANBG in Canberra.

Enjoy browsing the pictures in the exhibitions linked below and reading about each tree. If you are not already growing Australian native species as bonsai, we hope you become inspired to do so.
